

After they prayed, the place where they were meeting was shaken. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke the word of God boldly.

WHAT IS IGNITE?

Ignite SLO House of Prayer was founded in late February 2020 and is a space for people to gather and pray together. It's located in San Luis Obispo, but currently has meetings virtually over Facebook livestream and Zoom. It is small, with a main core group of about 15 people, but also is open for anyone to join or tune in. We've had up to 30 people in the meetings while we were still meeting in person. Ignite's goal is not to compete but simply to be an additional place for people to be intentional and gather together.

SLO House of Prayer

's desire is to facilitate an intentional, passionate, and peace-filled gathering. When we met in person, there would be dim lighting, string lights, and a table in the back for people to write their prayers on post-it notes to put on a board. The current brand image is minimalistic, simple, and the main colors used are black and white. The main audience is anyone who wants more of Jesus— anyone who wants to spend time with him, to get away from the busyness of life, to turn their attention onto God, or to intercede and pray for others. As for demographics, it is currently targeted towards college students in the San Luis Obispo area. The main people that have attended are part of an Asian-American Christian fellowship on Cal Poly's campus, or part of Journey Church— which is where the weekly meetings were held. The leadership team for Ignite desires for anyone who wants more of Jesus to come, not only people that they know or are part of a Christian fellowship or church.

As for the logistics, Ignite has weekly meetings on Monday nights that are 2 hours long. During the meeting, one or a few leaders will play worship songs and pray. Anyone is welcome to join and spend time with Jesus however they'd like. People can join in and sing along, read their bibles and journal, pray by themselves or with other people, talk to others, or more. It is simply a space and time for devotion— a house set aside for prayer to God.
